Prospect of a Speedy Resumption of Specie Payments.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Pursuant to views regarding the resumption of specie payment expressed by the President and Secretary of the Treasury recently, the director of the mint has been making extensive arrangements for coining both gold and silver to an extent heretofore unprecedented, so as to be ready for the resumption of specie payment. There are now large quantities of these metals awaiting coinage. The first step toward resumption has been taken, it having been ascertained to-day from the Secretary of the Treasury that the Government will pay out silver as soon as it can be profitably and conveniently coined for that purpose.

Silver at Par in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—About $8,000 in silver coin was brought to this city to-day by Adams's Express from the Philadelphia mint, consigned to one of our National Banks and a firm of private bankers, who are paying it out at par. The bullion from which it was coined was from the Ore Smelting and Refinery Works in this city, which is producing about $200,000 worth monthly, and all of which it will continue to have coined for circulation.

Specie Shipments—The [illegible] of Silver.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—The specie shipments to-day consisted of $239,216 in silver bars and $12,000 in gold bars. There is no bank statement to-day. A Washington dispatch says the amount of silver to be put out next week will be between 2,000,000 and $3,000,000, and should the demand exceed this, the Secretary will [illegible] more.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—The Secretary of Treasury, relative to the contemplated issue of silver coin in place of currency in making payments by the Department, says he does not know exactly how much will be paid out, but expects it will be convenient for him next week to issue about $200,000 in the regular course of business, but that this will depend somewhat on circumstances. If gold should go up silver would not be paid out, nor would it be if it was to be sold again to bankers for speculative purposes.

Holton, of Milwaukee, offered a substitute for the first proposition, declaring that States have a right to regulate railroads.

Abel, of St. Louis, opposed sanctioning Congressional control of railroads, or anything looking to the centralization of the powers of Government, and favored Holton's amendment.

Darwell, of New Orleans, took the same ground. [illegible] and Wooley, of Cincinnati, Allen, of Philadelphia, and Crocker, of Boston, favored the committee's report.

WHISKY AND MISSISSIPPI POLITICS.

I remember a somewhat amusing incident illustrative of the usual mode of conducting political canvasses in Mississippi at this period, which I will here briefly relate. Judge Edward Turner, for a long time Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the State and a man of many domestic and social virtues, became a candidate for a seat in the convention which assembled in the city of Jackson in 1833, for the purpose of amending the Constitution of Mississippi. The Senatorial District which he aspired to represent in that body was composed of the counties of Adams and Franklin. His opponent was a young lawyer of some promise, who afterward became a zealous and efficient Methodist preacher, and who won not a little distinction also in the Mexican war. The voters and candidates confronted each other at an early stage of the contest in a certain little county town. There was no very elaborate attempt to edify the multitude on this occasion by speech-making, but the use of an expedient far more convenient, and perhaps equally potential sometimes, was relied on for the purposes of conciliation. Judge Turner had his large demijohn of whisky in readiness, and in his blandest manner called up the voters indiscriminately to drink with him. With a view to fixing them more fully in his interest this elegant and genial gentleman took it upon himself to help each individual to a drink, handed to him especially in the most affectionate and obsequious manner. This seemed to have a very happy effect, and any man but Dick Stewart (as we were accustomed to call him), would have at once given up the contest. But he did not even think for a moment of yielding the field. On the contrary, the state of affairs seems to have inspired him with increased energy and adroitness. When Judge Turner's demijohn was exhausted, Stewart rose up and made known that he had some liquor on the ground also, which he trusted his fellow-citizens would consent to enjoy with him. When the voters gathered round the new supply, he said:

"FELLOW CITIZENS: My venerable opponent, Judge Turner, deemed it prudent to measure out to you his whisky. I shall do nothing of the sort. Here is my jug and here are glasses for you all. Come forward, one and all, and help yourselves."

It is almost needless to say that the multitude cheered Stewart most vociferously, and that he beat his venerable opponent several hundred votes.—Ex Senator Foote's Reminiscences.

SURGEON AND SOVEREIGN.

A REMINISCENCE OF THE LATE DR. NELATON.

Perhaps I may give a single story from among the many which will figure in his memoirs. In 1865 the young Prince Imperial took a fancy, in the riding school, to drive his pony close along the wall, and seemed to take so much pleasure in it that all remonstrance about its danger was in vain. At last the pony went so close that the Prince had his leg severely bruised. His father had been informed of this habit and had ordered him to discontinue it, and hence the Prince was afraid to confess that he was hurt. He bore up bravely for a day or two, although in great pain, but at length limped so much that attention was called to it, and he confessed. A few hours later he was confined to his bed. Nelaton was sent for and stated that an abscess had been formed which must be opened. He prepared for the operation. The Emperor was in the chamber in a nervous fever, now walking up and down the room stroking his moustache, then going to the window to beat a tattoo upon it with his fingers. His anxiety could be calmed for a moment only, and then he would rush to his son, pet him, embrace him and lavish upon him his strong affection. As the doctor prepared to make the puncture Napoleon caught his hand and shuddered as if the bistouri had been plunged into his own body. Nelaton pushed him brusquely away, and he went to the window again, but was immediately called back by a cry. Seeing that nothing but blood came from the wound the Emperor began to abuse the surgeon, and for a moment used some very strong language.

"I did not go deep enough," said Nelaton calmly, and he again prepared his knife.

Once more the Emperor caught his hand.

"You prevent me from doing my duty, Sire," said Nelaton severely, once more pushing the Emperor's hand aside, and in an instant plunged the bistouri into the abscess. A stream of pus flowed from the wound and with a gasp as of intense pain the Emperor seized the surgeon's arm.

"There is yet something to be done," said Nelaton, tearing himself free, and very gently and with a steady hand the knife he laid open the young Prince's thigh. The Emperor's eyes flashed with rage, and he looked as if ready to strike the surgeon dead at his feet, when the latter pointed to the pus which was then flowing freely. Napoleon melted in a moment before this evidence, and crying like a child he warmly embraced the surgeon. The Prince was saved, and Nelaton was adored by the Court.—Paris Cor. N. Y. Times.

On last Friday, Eugene, son of Wiley and Pamelia Winkle, of Benton county, aged two years four months and twenty-four days, was so badly burned that he died the next day. The mother had a fire in the yard for some purpose, and while absent for a few moments the child's clothes took fire, and before the flames were subdued it was so badly burned that death ensued.

Mr. R. C. Geer, of the Waldo Hills, says that he has lost 60 head of valuable sheep by turning them into his stubble fields. He had previously turned in his hogs and supposed they had taken the most of the grain. The rain had caused the wheat left on the ground to swell ready to sprout, and there was enough of it to ruin many of the sheep before he learned that they were affected by it.

Hon. W. R. Calloway returned from a visit to his son in Wasco county last Wednesday. He informs the Benton Democrat that in Ochoco and other valleys grain is excellent, cattle fat, buyers plenty, and prices for all kinds of stock good. The Willamette Valley is now almost wholly supplied with beef from this region. Mr. C. met any number of emigrants bound for Ochoco to locate. Four bands of sheep are now en route for that section, numbering several thousand head.

The Statesman says: "There is in Oregon a family, a branch of which lives in Salem, which comprises five generations of people now living. The oldest member of the family is a lady 9[illegible] years of age. She has a son-in-law of 70, whose wife is the second in the line. One of her children we believe is living in Salem, and this one also has children and grandchildren living here. The oldest member of the family is great great grandmother to the youngest, making, probably, the most lengthy family in Oregon."

Dr. J. J. Dawne, of Salem, has just received a letter stating that a party of emigrants, consisting of eleven families, had started from near Memphis, Tennessee, for Oregon. Dr. Dawne is corresponding continually with parties in the States upon Oregon, its resources and progress, and has induced a large number of families, these among others, to come to our young State and assist in swelling her population, developing her resources, and eventually to place her in the front rank in the great manufacturing and commercial interests of the nation.

Mr. L. B. Gear, son of Ralph Geer, of Marion county, drove a band of fine blooded sheep across the mountains this fall, en route for his ranch near Walla Walla, and was getting along extremely well until he reached Rock Creek, near Stagg's ranch, on the road between the Dalles and Umatilla, where they ate of some poisonous weed, and about two hundred and fifty laid down and died in a few minutes afterwards. J. B. Judson, Humphrey's Landing, Marion county, writes to the Farmer as follows: "As you solicit reports from farmers of the crop yield for 1873, I will state the yield of my farm to be: of fall wheat 41 bushels, spring wheat 23 bushels, oats 40 bushels, corn and potatoes not yet harvested, but estimated to be of corn 40 bushels, potatoes 150 bushels, and on six acres of orchard of about 400 bearing apple trees I think it is safe to say they have borne 2,000 bushels of apples this year; of hay, 2½ tons to the acre." W. B. Gibson writes from Sodaville, Linn county, as follows: "In this section and around Lebanon fall wheat has averaged 30 bushels to the acre, spring wheat, 20, oats, 45, flax seed (not much raised), about 12. At present farmers are very busy putting in fall wheat, more of which will be sown this season in Linn county than ever before."

Some time ago one of the San Francisco papers gave an account of the remains of an unknown person being found somewhere near Linkville. Simply the skeleton remained, from which the lower jaw has been forwarded to Dr. Jackson, of Jacksonville, to assist in discovering, if possible, to whom it belonged. The teeth were perfect in the jaw, but have been so long exposed to the elements that some of the front teeth have fallen out and the enamel of the remainder has shelled off to some extent. The first molar on the left side is filled in the crown cavity or top of the tooth with gold; the second molar has two of the cavities filled with gold in the same manner, and an amalgam filling on the outer or buccal side, while the third molar has two gold fillings in the crown cavity. As dentists usually keep a descriptive record of their work, it is possible this jaw may lead to an identification. A gun, knife and a pipe were found with the remains, and can be seen at the Post-office in Jacksonville.

THE TERRITORIES.

Forty-six yoke of oxen—all hauling salt—recently arrived at Boise City in one day.

A watch thief made good time last week, in Salem, getting away with three repeaters.

The fine steamer Olympia, owned by Capt. D. B. Finch, will be brought up from San Francisco and put on the waters of Puget Sound this season.

Fort Cape Disappointment is now the military prison for this department. Several men convicted of crimes in the service are working out sentences there, and four more are soon to arrive from Fort Colville.

Certain parties who probably hanker after the fatness of contracts on public works, are circulating a petition to Congress for aid for a military wagon road from Simcoe to the Columbia river by way of Lewis river.

The Courier says: "The Land Office of Olympia has just received a map from the Commissioner showing the line of withdrawal of lands in the district, to correspond with the line of the proposed branch of the Northern Pacific Railroad. The line is marked to come through the Skagit Pass, running thence northwest to Tp. No. 32 north, range 9 east, from thence southerly to a point on the Snohomish river about ten miles from Muckelteo; from thence south between Lakes Sammamish and Washington on to a crossing on White river, about six miles above its junction with Black river, and from thence nearly direct to Tacoma. There is little change in the lands to be withdrawn, except that San Juan and adjacent Islands are released. A strip of land about nine miles wide and twenty long, near Port Discovery, is also released. An examination of the map would naturally lead to the conclusion that the first withdrawal had included all the lands on the Sound that they wanted, and that this one was made to cover the same ground as nearly as possible."

TRIAL OF MARSHAL BAZAINE.

PARIS, Oct. 21.—Before the Bazaine Court-martial to-day Schneider and Rouher both testified that Bazaine never solicited the chief command.

Marshal Canrobert gave most interesting testimony concerning the battle of St. Privat. Although he was told that the Imperial Guards would be sent to his aid at noon, and twice asked Bazaine for ammunition, he received no assistance whatever. The Prussian Guards lost 8,000 men in the engagement, but he was compelled nevertheless to retreat by the enemy's overwhelming artillery. He could have held his position at Mars La Tour on the 16th of January, but he abandoned it by special orders from the Commander-in-Chief.

Marshal Le Bœuf deposed that his corps achieved a decisive advantage on the 16th of August, but Bazaine ordered it to fall back, fearing a failure of ammunition and provisions.

General L'Admirault stated that he received only on the evening of the 12th Bazaine's orders to cross the Moselle on the 14th. He gave a detailed account of the subsequent operations, and declared that he believed it would have been possible to cross the Moselle on the 17th.

General Bourbaki stated that he was not ordered to go to the assistance of Marshal Canrobert on the 18th of August.

SKELETON FOUND.

About ten or twelve days ago, says the Yreka Journal, the skeleton of some unknown man was found within a few hundred yards of the old Oregon road, between Whittle's ferry and Spencer's saw mill, the road running up the opposite side of the Klamath river. The bones were picked clean by wild animals and birds, but it is believed he was lost, as his money, some $15 in coin, was found near the remains, and his rifle standing against a tree about fifty yards off, with all the charges fired off. There were no indications of his having been murdered, as his money would have been taken in such case, and it is not believed he killed himself from the fact that he would not stray so far off, nor would his rifle be left standing against a tree. The discharge of all the cartridges was believed to have been for the purpose of making a signal for some one to rescue him, this road being seldom traveled, and only by hunters. A coroner's inquest was held, but the mere fact of finding the body and death from cause unknown was all the verdict they could arrive at. He was no doubt lost last winter and possibly froze to death, and must have been a stranger, as no one has been reported missing from this section or Southern Oregon for a year past.

A NEWSBOYS' PALACE.—The newsboys of New York are to have a new home, which will accommodate about 300 boys. The building is being erected on the site of the old Shakspeare Hotel, at the intersection of Chambers, William and Duane streets. A large and well fitted gymnasium will form one of its most prominent as well as useful features. Baths, lecture rooms, dining and sitting rooms will also be provided, as well as a splendid dormitory, kitchen, closets and a laundry. The structure will be of brick, embellished with polychrome decorations, and will cost rather more than $200,000.

SHINPLASTERS TO BE TAXED.—The municipal and other corporations in Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, and other Southern States have issued large amounts of small notes, used as currency, but which have become nearly valueless. The commissioner of Internal Revenue, it is stated, will immediately proceed to tax corporations ten per cent. on the amount of [illegible]

H. B. No. 20, relating to corporations. The House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole with Mr. Eldridge in the chair, and the amendments recommended by the Committee to whom it had been referred, were considered by sections. PANICS AND THE MORAL CODE

The most casual observer can not fail to have noticed that just before the recent financial thunderbolt fell on Wall street there were frequent rumors of defalcations and irregularities in banks and counting houses and when the panic was at its highest, when bank officers were forced by the press by clamorous creditors and by their own self interest to inspect their books with extraordinary care there appeared most startling exposures of rascality and the very in[illegible] stern financial institutions. Clerks cashiers and book-keepers had been pilfering whenever the vigilance of their superiors had for a moment relaxed. And when the storm came upon them they were all unprepared to meet it. In the twinkling of an eye a score of bank presidents with thousands of unsuspecting depositors, awoke to the realization of the terrible fact that those whom they had trusted with fortune and financial reputation had proven false to their trust. It would seem as if the banking system now in vogue made in too many cases a hot bed of embezzlers, forgers and stupendous thieves.

The long black list of "defaulting" bank officials begins with Mills and Rodman of the Brooklyn Trust Company, and ends at the present writing, with the cashier of the Needham (Mass.) National Bank. To the average reader the little "irregularity" involving $330,000 in the Dubuque (Iowa) National Bank, may not be a matter of surprise. The violation of financial trusts—otherwise stealing—has become so common of late that it has ceased to excite surprise. We read in the dispatches of the "defalcation" of John Smith cashier of some bank, remember, with an effort, that yesterday's paper contained a similar story, and then, with some commonplace comment over the wickedness of the present generation, pass on to the next one.

It is time that these things were called by their proper names. On the frontier, where Judge Lynch dispenses primitive justice, the horse-thief when caught is hung to the nearest tree. In New York the [illegible], when his bland president reminds him of a heavy deficit in the bank vault, turns over his available property and all is well. And yet, between the case of the horse-thief and that of the dishonest officer there is only the important difference of a halter. It may be that much of the evil wrought in the recent panic to financial institutions is directly traceable to faulty banking systems. But it can not be doubted that the public mind [illegible] by the enormous robberies which preceded it. When the financial barometer began to fall depositors were nervous and suspicious. Under these circumstances it is not strange that when the first gust of the coming storm was felt there was a simultaneous rush all over the country. Then came the general, the terrible crash. We think, then, that the financial troubles of the past month are attributable in great measure to dishonest practices on the part of bank officials. It may well be said that these practices go beyond unsound theories, bad [illegible] and maladministration in finance, for they affect character. They are not evils only, they are crimes. In viewing them, the banker will say they show a lamentable, disastrous want of integrity. The preacher should say they are the outcroppings of a systematic [illegible], a curse which strikes far and near [illegible] of business integrity" and "stealing" are interchangeable terms. What is a "defalcation" in the mercantile world, is, in the nomenclature of the moralist, "theft." In the contrast we have before us [illegible], it will be observed that while the horse thief takes another's property, the bank clerk not only converts to his own use the wealth of another but he actually becomes a criminal of the grossest type. He is the murderer of "credit"—that faith in human nature which is needful in all legitimate business between men, and without which commercial dealings involving large sums of money can not take place. He robs us of our money and our confidence in mankind as well. Is it not a fatal tenderness toward crime, which prompts us to discard the reliable and unmistakable stigma of "stealing" for the milder and vague epithet of "defalcation"? One of the gravest of the series of "irregularities" was that of young Carl [illegible], who absconded from New York a heavy defaulter to the Union Trust Company. It is noticeable that his father was at one time charged with a similar [illegible], (involving $335,000, we believe) while he was Agent of the Methodist Book Concern. Perhaps the history of the other young men who have recently fled from ignominy and disgrace, leaving behind them a dishonored name and family, might afford lessons equally instructive.

We said "young men who have fled from ignomy and disgrace." Ah! That is not true. In nine cases out of ten these thieves and murderers of credit escape all punishment and, worse than that all social odium. The truth is too plainly apparent we are almost imperceptibly but full surely, drifting away from the good old orthodox creed of personal honesty. While we are disputing over baptism or thundering against heterodoxy we are forgetting "the weightier matters of the law." "Thou shalt not steal" is the command that was thundered from Sinai in a day when "defaulting bank presidents and "irregular" bank clerks were unknown. Could it be preached and observed now, as then, we would have fewer scoundrels and a less suspicious faith in our fellows. We want first and last a social and a commercial creed founded on the ancient doctrine of common honesty.

In the Washington Chronicle of Oct. [illegible]th we notice the following:

On motion of Mr. Attorney General Williams William Lair Hill and W. [illegible] Franklin, Esqs., of Oregon were admitted to practice as attorneys and counselors of this court.

Also, in the Chronicle of the 16th the following from the record of proceedings in the Supreme Court of the day previous:

John R. Lamb et al., appellants vs. [illegible] A. Davenport. The argument of this cause was commenced by Mr. W. L. Hill of counsel for the appellant, and continued by Mr. J. D. McPherson and Mr. James M. Carlisle for the appellee, and by Mr. George H. Williams for the appellant.

THE AUGUST CYCLONE

The Signal Office at Washington has prepared a report of the movements of the great storm of August last and the damage done thereby. The dreadful havoc wrought among the shipping along the shore of Cape Breton Island and the Nova Scotian coast, the destruction of whole villages and the appalling loss of human life attending the disasters, are summed up in such a stern business like way that the reader cannot help shuddering. The report shows that 1,032 vessels of which 1,[illegible] were small fishing schooners are known to have been destroyed during the [illegible]th and [illegible]th of August in the neighborhood of the Gulf of St. Lawrence and the Atlantic shores of Nova Scotia, Cape Breton and Newfoundland. In addition to this large number over 90 vessels were destroyed by the same storm in its course before reaching Newfoundland, making a grand total of at least 1,122 vessels wrecked and shattered by this demon of the air in the brief space of forty eight hours. The loss of life is more distressing by far. In the towns hundreds were crushed by falling buildings, or dashed to the earth and killed in the resistless sweep of the hurricane. Along the coast the frail dwellings of the fishermen were carried on the wings of the cyclone to the angry sea. The waters rose high above their accustomed limits. Incomplete reports from the most populous districts place the number of lives lost at 223. The most moderate estimate of the marine calamities in which whole crews were lost swells this number to nearly 400. To this number must be added the lives known to have been lost in the earlier history of the cyclone. The grand total of human beings who went down to death on sea and land amounts to 600. The report also shows that about 900 buildings were injured or totally destroyed.

It is said that the fishing interests of the United States and Canada have been seriously crippled by these heavy losses. On Gloucester, Marblehead and other towns in New England they have fallen with special severity.

WOMEN'S CONGRESS

The Association for the Advancement of Women is an organization founded on the hypothesis that present social laws as they relate to women need thorough reconstruction of workers and sympathizers in this movement. A parliament was recently held in New York. The schedule of themes for discussion was varied and comprehensive as society itself, as a glance at the annexed list will show:

SOCIAL

1 Higher education for women. 2 Coeducation of the sexes. 3 Women in literature, editor, author, speaker. 4 Woman as teacher and professor. 5 Woman in art and science. 6 Woman in the medical, surgical and legal professions. 7 Industries and co-operative industries among women. 8 Woman's work in philanthropy, prison reform, temperance, peace, institutions of charity and charitable societies. 9 Woman in the church and pulpit. 10 Law as it affects women. 11 Woman's place in government.

DOMESTIC

1 Enlightened motherhood. 2 The inviolate homestead. 3 The household. 4 Equitable monetary division between husband and wife. 5 The relation of woman to her dress.

The peaceful discussion of the first class of subjects will probably do no harm, and the interchange of opinions of matters on the second ought to result in much good. It is presumed that these matters will keep the Congress in session until spring, when an extra session will be necessary.

The Brooklyn Argus relates the following good one:

Rev. Henry Ward Beecher is the collossus of American humor. His introduction of Rev. Dr. Stoughton of London to the audience of the Academy was recognized as a masterpiece of fun. The Doctor was quite overcome by it, but managed to muster strength enough to reply as follows: "Ladies and gentlemen, I am appalled at the length and breadth of American humor. It is bounded on the north by the aurora borealis, on the east by the rising sun, on the south by the Tropic of Cancer and on the west by the Day of Judgment." What Beecher had done was to allude to the Darwin theory and to illustrate it by asserting that an American is a fully developed Englishman.

A Chicago dispatch of the 22d inst. says that definite returns of the recent election in Iowa show that Grove not Carpenter's majority exceeds [illegible]000. The Republicans in the State Senate number 36 against 14 Opposition members. The House will have an Opposition majority of one or two. It will be noticed that our morning dispatches give ex-Senator William Allen, for Governor, a majority over Governor Noyes. The remainder of the State ticket is elected.

A papyrus manuscript found in an Egyptian tomb, has lately been transferred by a scholar of Heidelberg who pronounces it to be an address of Rameses III to all the nations of the earth detailing minutely all the causes which led to the exodus of the Jews from the land of the Pharaohs.

Another thief exposed in the Postal service. Says a Wilmington (Del.) dispatch of Oct. 22d: "Capt. Dougherty, Postmaster here has been arrested on a charge of being a defaulter to the Government for over $[illegible]00. Important developments are expected in a few days."

YAKIMA GOLD MINES

A correspondent at Kittitass W. T. sends us the following concerning recent discoveries of gold on the tributaries of the Yakima river:

There has been a rich discovery of gold on the Smock, a tributary of the Yakima river. It joins the Yakima at the head of Kittitass valley. Ten men made the discovery about three weeks ago. They kept it a secret until a few days since. There is plenty of water and the mines are of easy access. I have seen nuggets that weighed half an ounce, [illegible] and $4 [illegible] all of which were weighed in my presence. Work is literally suspended in Kittitas valley, all have gone and are going to the mines, which are only about [illegible] miles distant, a good trail leading right to them. No building or mining stake about it. The pioneering party [illegible] in number have taken out some large pieces weighing an ounce [illegible] [illegible] gold is of a bright color [illegible] Indian express to Walla Walla. [illegible] perfectly wild over it and [illegible] in the night and reached [illegible] short time after daylight. [illegible] not inform you but the [illegible] near the Wenatchie Needles which is reported as a very rough country.

The Mountaineer says: "These mines were discovered by the Goodwin Brothers some months ago but kept a secret by them until lately. It has caused much excitement among the settlers and a perfect stampede from all parts of the valley has taken place.

It is reported that one man in a short time crevised out of the bed rock with a knife and spoon dust to the value of $160 in coarse gold—one piece weighing over an ounce. This dust, and several other amounts have been exhibited to the settlers of the Yakima, and the result has been magical."

ASLEEP ON THE AIR

A YOUNG LADY SLUMBERS WITH THE ATMOSPHERE FOR A PILLOW.

A Paris letter to an Indianapolis paper says: I quite forgot everything myself included as I watched the feats of a mesmerist with a beautiful young lady. He was a great burly fellow dressed in the toggery of the eastern juggler. She was lithe and spirituelle in a rich dress with flowing sleeves. She stood on a stool on a dais resting on a magnificent great square of Turkish carpet. He made a few passes over her but not at first touching her then pressing his hands about her face with a sort of dumb incantation.

Then two supports were placed under her elbows, and the operator proceeded with incredible rapidity weaving his arms over her head and down her sides and using his great wand in the same way never touching though. Under this her eyes closed gradually and she passed completely into his control. Then the miracles began. Bayard Taylor has described this in his Oriental books but I always thought his imagination was affected by the far away strangeness of the scene where he witnessed it. But here it was re-enacted before us more wonderfully even than Taylor describes it.

When the girl had evidently lost all sensibility except as emanating from the magician he quickly removed the stool on which she stood. She was then in the air supported only by her elbows. Then one of these supports was removed and she seemed more a spirit than a material body. But she was motionless as a picture. For a moment she was to me a realization of Poe's fantasy—

> "Ligia, Ligia, my beautiful one
> Whose harshest idea will to melody run
> For she stood
>
> * Capriciously still
> Like the lone Albatross incumbent on night."

We were left but the moment to wonder at this miracle of nature's law of gravity defied. She was plastic as clay or a waxen body and the operator gave her most fantastic shapes of grace and poetry. One after another of the figures of mythology were represented, each one increasing in beauty and each requiring a more difficult pose. At last great white wings were fixed to her shoulders, a golden trumpet was placed in one hand and held as if being sounded, her figure was given the exact attitude of one in flight and the great lights that made the amphitheater bright as day before were slowly turned low, a light of pale gold came streaming upon her from the roof giving her a glorified angelic look that thrilled the vast audience that was hanging in breathless silence upon the wonderful spectacle, till one could almost feel it tremble.

I never saw anything so marvelous and would have listened incredulously to any narrative of it. Seeing is believing. I have seen, must believe, and yet I must almost doubt the report my observing powers make of the performance. Shrewd people who cannot be fooled, say the girl had a band about her waist that reached to and was held by the support her elbow rested on. But this leaves it all as inexplicable as before and the explanation has to be explained itself.

A GRAMMATICAL POINT.—Dr. P—— was the President of a Southern college who professed to be very grammatical in the use of his language and therefore expected his pupils to be likewise. Playing cards was strictly prohibited on the school premises but as is always the case this law is often violated by the students without their being detected. A number of freshmen collected together in one of their number's room and were enjoying a good game of euchre, when a knock was heard at the door.

"Who's there?" one exclaimed.

"Me!" was the laconic reply.

"Who's me?"

"Professor P——."

"You lie! Ha ha ha! Professor P—— wouldn't say 'me.' He'd say 'It is I,' sir."

The old professor turned his back and went off knowing that they had him there.

The deaths from cholera in Hungary up to September 1 this year was 100,000. The disease is declining in Vienna but increasing at St. Petersburg. In France at Havre 92 deaths in a week are reported. It is in Hull England.

MARY AND I.

Twas evening in May and the soft zephyr sighed
Through branches low bending above
My Mary and I as we wandered along
And whisper'd of beauty and love.
We'll make us a nest like the birdlings, I said
And never shall part any more
Oh yes, she replied, and I can furnish it nice
At HURGREN & SHINDLER'S STORE.

Fair creature, there's many a wealthier man
Would gladly have you for a bride.
But no one can love you more fondly than I—
My treasure, my beauty and pride!
Oh! had I a mansion with carpets of gold
And silver laid over the door.
But smiling she said: You can purchase the best
At HURGREN & SHINDLER'S STORE.

I'll spread you a couch upon which to recline
When evening shall call us to rest
Of the [illegible] [illegible]—but she said with a sigh
[illegible] hair mattrass the best
[illegible] it shall be love at tables inlaid
[illegible] from a far distant shore
[illegible] [illegible]. They have elegant sets
At HURGREN & SHINDLER'S STORE.

[illegible] Mary, alas, I must sadly confess
[illegible] but slender as yet
[illegible] furnish a house in the style you'd want
[illegible] [illegible] in debt.
To ask you to share my poor lodgings and board
Is something that I should deplore
She said with a smile: You can buy very cheap
At HURGREN & SHINDLER'S STORE.

To-morrow then I'll let us journey along
To the corner of Alder and Front street—
The numbers 98 and 100 (river side)
Where lovers so aptly meet.
How many fond souls might be severed for years
From those they so fondly adore
Were it not for the beautiful furniture they have
At HURGREN & SHINDLER'S STORE.

They have marble top'd rooms and elegant sets
Of Bedroom Furniture new
With center tables and what-nots and mirrors great
And an endless variety of chairs not a few.
They do a cash business and with money in hand
To purchase every style of furniture lower
Are able to supply all the public demand
At HURGREN & SHINDLER'S STORE.

We went, Mary and I, and I can ne'er forget
The pleasure that beamed on her face
As she gazed at the marvel of beauty displayed
In HURGREN & SHINDLER'S place.
We furnished our home in elegant style
[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
And Mary's [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
OF HURGREN & SHINDLER'S STORE.

CITY.

Served Him Right.—Forest Grove was the scene of a very exciting sensation yesterday, quite infrequent for that peaceable and order-loving hamlet. The affair which created such an excitement, was a personal rencounter between two well known individuals, both in this vicinity and in other portions of the State. These parties were Mr. William Thompson of the Salem Mercury, and Frank Meyers, recently of the Forest Grove Independent. The difficulty grew out of an article which appeared in the columns of the Independent, reflecting in the strongest manner on the character and social standing of Mr. Thompson. Doubtless the reading public will bear in mind the low, scurrilous and contemptible paragraph alluded to, which adorned the columns of that delectable journal about one month ago. Mr. Thompson, on observing the paragraph, made no comments whatever; as its vile insinuations were of too low a character to admit of mention in the columns of any reputable journal. Meyers at that time was conducting the Independent, and was ostensibly acting as its editor. Whether or not he actually penned the very offensive article, Mr. Thompson determined to hold him personally responsible for the base calumny; to compel him to disclose the name of the informant or make a public retraction of the damaging statements. Accordingly a few days subsequent to the appearance of the paragraph, Mr. Thompson wrote young Meyers a letter, in which he demanded of him the name of his informant, or else publicly retract in his paper the charges preferred. Meyers never answered the letter or gave any satisfaction. Yesterday Mr. Thompson went out to Forest Grove with the avowed determination of calling in person on his asperser and to compel him to disclose, retract, or in some manner give the satisfaction demanded. On arriving at his destination, he soon found young Meyers, of whom he demanded his slanderer's name, or else a public retraction. When thus confronted, with no possibility of escape, Meyers began to evade the issue, declining to make any retraction or give any names. The only satisfaction he would afford was to the effect that he had received an anonymous letter in which the offensive statements were made. Finding that Meyers would not act honorably in the matter, Mr. Thompson drew his cane and dealt the young man a severe blow on his left cheek, laying the flesh bare for several inches and breaking the end of the stick. The force and pain of the blow caused Meyers to stagger back against a fence. Before he could recover himself, Thompson gave him another sharp rap on the right cheek, which slightly bruised his face. Heretofore Meyers had maintained a masterly inactivity; but he now recovered himself, and made some of the most rapid time on record, yelping every bound like a lashed cur. The silent and deserted streets of Forest Grove, on that peaceful Sabbath day, were made to resound with the cries of "Murder, murder! help, help! take him away!" etc. Meyers ran away with the speed of a shot feline while Thompson, who had far less to run for, brought up a rather slow rear. The unequal race lasted for the distance of half a block, when Thompson, finding Meyers too fleet on foot for him, and thinking, perhaps, that he had administered a [illegible] sufficiently severe, gave up the chase. He then proceeded at once to the office of the City Recorder, where he made a full statement of the facts. No complaint having been entered, Thompson was allowed to quietly pursue his journey to Portland. After the [illegible] administered, Meyers sought a neighboring drug store, where he applied some "emollients and soothing embrocations" with which to allay the pain and assuage his deep humiliation and chagrin. Although the lesson is a very severe one it is hoped by the young gentleman's friends that he will out live it, and that the sad experience thus obtained may be of lasting benefit. The popular verdict where the affair transpired is, "served him right." The whole affair as it occurred was narrated by an impartial eye witness, and we have every reason to vouch for its accuracy.

Passengers for Portland.—Last Saturday the steamer John L. Stephens sailed from San Francisco for Portland. She brings the following passengers: Warren Leland, Mrs. D. A. Earl, [illegible] H. Fay & wife, H. Patterson, Jas. Brass, Chas. Tuder, W. V. Spencer, W. H. Pumphrey, Mrs. M. M. Miller, Miss M. Byers, Mr. Cohn, F. Fishman, B. Wolverton, D. D. Bunnell & wife, G. Newburgh, J. C. Sellon, D. Clark, H. Story, A. Maupin, C. P. [illegible], H. W. Scott, C. C. Beals, E. Wolf, M. H. Scott, J. G. Megler & wife, S. B. Fogg & family, J. Daley, Horace Brown, C. Summers, N. Erwenger, Mrs. M. Kelly, Mrs. P. Conner & child, F. Sheddy & wife, Mrs. J. H. Lyon, Mrs. C. Cook & child, Thos. Kane, wife & mother, C. Douglas & wife, W. H. Fanchon, wife & 5 children, J. Hughes & family, M. Kittelmiker, wife & 6 children, J. R. Edwards, W. F. McIntosh & family.

Chinese Row.—Alder, between First and Second Streets was the theater of an unusual excitement last evening about 7 o'clock. Two Chinamen, named respectively Ah Ning and Jake Tong Yeu, became engaged in an altercation, when the former drew a knife and made a sudden thrust at his antagonist. The weapon took effect near the right shoulder, glancing to the collar bone. The wound was comparatively slight. It bled little and gave the Chinaman no pain or inconvenience. The affray grew out of jealousy between the parties about some moon eyed damsel. Immediately after the blow was inflicted, a large crowd collected, and the parties were escorted to Jail. The affair will be the occasion of Judicial investigation in the Police Court this morning.

British Bark Fleches.—This bark, under command of Capt. Ritchie, arrived at port in tow of the Dixie Thompson on Saturday morning. The Fleches was built at Liverpool in 1860. She is constructed of iron, 180 feet long, and of 730 tons registered capacity. Since being finished, the bark has been engaged in the Western coast trade. The last voyage previous to coming to this port, the Flechero brought a cargo of assorted freight from Liverpool to San Francisco. She was 130 days in making the passage. After discharging cargo at the latter port the bark took on rock ballast and came to this port, under charter to carry a load of grain to Europe. In a few days all the ballast will be discharged, and the vessel will begin to receive wheat.

Meteorological Matters.—Mr. Brown, of the Signal Service Corps in this city, has furnished us the following item: "The International Meteorological Congress at Vienna has unanimously adopted the proposition of Gen. Myer, Chief Signal Officer U. S. Army, for an exchange of signal service and weather reports, for the benefit of commerce and agriculture, between all civilized nations. A system of weather reports and storm warnings is now in process of establishment by the Chinese Government for China and the Chinese Pacific coast.

Lost Overboard.—While the English bark Flechero was making the voyage from Liverpool to San Francisco, and off Cape Horn, one of the seamen was lost overboard. He was engaged up in the rigging and losing his balance fell backward into the water, a distance of nearly 60 feet. At the time a heavy gale was blowing, and the sea was running very high. It was impossible to do anything for the poor fellow. Almost the same instant he struck the water, the sailor was forever swept from human sight.

Vesta Arrived.—The English bark Vesta arrived at port on Saturday, after a very tedious and protracted voyage. She brings a large assorted cargo from Liverpool, consigned to Messrs. Janion & Rhodes. Nothing of particular note occurred during the voyage; no accidents and but little sickness. In a few days the vessel will commence to discharge her cargo. As yet the Vesta has not been chartered for a return cargo.

Towed Away.—The German bark Theresa Behn, having completed her cargo of grain, was taken in tow yesterday morning by the Annie Stewart. She was towed down below the St. Helens Bar when the steamer then returned to her wharf. The bark will probably be towed on to Astoria to-day.

Excursionists Returned.—A number of the former excursionists who came down from Albany last week bound for Astoria, returned [illegible]. The remainder will probably [illegible]

Jury Disagree.—The trial of J. R. Farrish, charged with forgery, consumed the principal part of last Friday and Saturday. The cause was submitted to the jury quite late in the afternoon. Up to a late hour last evening, the jury had failed to agree on a verdict. As the jury will no doubt fail to reconcile their differences, they will, in all probability, be discharged by the Court this morning.

Depot Bell.—The old brass bell, which has been used for many years on board the steamer California, was taken off some time since and placed on the steamship dock. A stationary cast iron yoke has been attached, and the old tarnished bell burnished up. We learn that it will be mounted and conveyed to the eastside wharf, where it is to render service as a depot bell.

Court in Yamhill.—Circuit Court for Yamhill county will convene to-morrow at Lafayette. Judge B. F. Bonham came down last evening, en route to hold court at that place. District Attorney T. B. Humphrey and R. Mallory are also in the city, and will attend the term of Court.

Lowest Point.—The temperature stood lower on Saturday than it has at any day during the present season. At 4:32 o'clock on that morning, the thermometer stood at 31.5°

OUT DOOR SPORTS.

We have every reason to believe that next season will be more exciting than the one just closing. A strong nine in opposition to the Pioneers is talked of for 1874.

The Pioneers will be reorganized for next season, as such is made necessary by changes taking place in the nine. Of the Pacific Club we cannot speak. Their record for the past season was excellent.

Previous to the base ball match on Saturday a foot race was made up. The distance to be run was one hundred and fifty yards for two twenties. The contestants were a young man who fits the fair sex with dainty little gaiters and Mr. ——, who can tell how many nails go to the pound. The latter, who had the choice in the pools, proved to be the fleetest of the pair, and came in at the goal winner by fifteen feet, and thereby pocketing the coin.

A few days ago the crew of the Dreadnaught sent a challenge to the crew and backers of the Occidental, offering to row them a race on the river in front of the city, from three to five miles in length. This challenge we learn has been promptly accepted and all the usual preliminaries of the contest are to be arranged in a day or two between the competing crews. Both boats will be managed by skillful and experienced oarsmen. In view of this fact, the best race which has yet come off on these waters can be anticipated. The race will probably come off on Thanksgiving Day.

The "Unknowns," consisting of the following players: McCraken p, and Capt. Matthew c, Speck ss, Hart 1st b, Al. Raleigh 2d b, Sheppard 3d b, Oliver l. f, Cushing c. f, and Austin c. f, made a brilliant effort to beat the Pioneers on Saturday. The latter were short Hart, Whiting and Lownsdale, whose places were filled by Badger, Royal and Taylor.

The first two innings were decidedly in favor of the "Unknowns," but the Pioneers began to settle down to work from the second inning finally winning, by a handsome majority. Though the Pioneers have lost the services of Hart and Whiting, they have in Royal and Badger two excellent players who will have little opportunity to show what they can do before a critical audience this season.

The Salem Statesman of last Saturday asserts, on the authority of the Captain of the College Base Ball Club, Mr. Geo. Belt, that no dispatch had ever been sent from either the captain or any member of the Club, to the effect that the College boys ever contemplated, for a moment, the playing of another match game with the Pioneers to settle the question of the championship of the State. Be that as it may, we saw a telegram yesterday which was sent from Salem last week and signed by Belt, which was substantially to the effect that the College Club would not play the match game on last Saturday, but would, in all probability, do so next Saturday—Nov. 1st. Now, there is one of two things; either that the telegram was a forgery, or else, some person has slightly deviated from the direct line of veracity. We shall leave the Statesman and Mr. Belt to adjust that matter between themselves and their respective consciences.

The races at Multnomah Park were continued last Saturday, the feature of attraction being a race between Knott's horse Vallandigham, Young's horse Bill Bigham, and Bird's mare Foster Miner. The horses all have some reputation, and quite a large crowd went out to see the contest.

After considerable delay the horses were called up; pools selling pretty lively about even on the horses and 3 to 1 against the mare. In the drawing, Bigham took the inside track, Miner second and Vallandigham outside.

The start, in the first heat, gave rise to a somewhat heated and prolonged discussion, as a question was raised by some incidents connected with it that no one on the ground seemed to be able to settle authoritatively, and each person in the crowd had his own opinion about. It was about on this wise, Bigham and Miner were at the scratch and Vallandigham some twenty feet back only partially turned when the judges tapped the horses off. The trainers of the two first let them go while Vallandigham's held him by the bit. After Bigham and Miner were beyond recall, a shout was made for them to come back, but their riders not hearing, went on round. The horses keeping very close together, and Miner coming in across the score about a neck ahead in 1:50½. The crowd then waited to know if Val. who had stood still while the others ran was to be ruled out, or allowed to run. After considerable hesitation and consultation, the judges concluded to let him in, though upon what ground we are unable to see, as they gave the first heat to Miner, and no horse could win a heat unless it was a start, and it could not be a start for the two and not for all. But at any rate, in due time the horses were again called up, and went round the track on a very good start, Val. being fresh, of course got away with the heat, coming under the wire in 1:51½. Now, the pools were selling with odds on Vallandigham against the field, he having run one heat and won it, Bigham having run two and lost both of them, and Miner appeared jaded. But the third heat very greatly changed the appearance of things. Mr. Tennant was now handling Bigham and got him off with at least a fair start, and he showed himself worthy the confidence of his friends, for he came down to square work, keeping with his antagonist to the half mile stake, and then letting himself out, came in with a wide gap behind him in 1:56. Now the betting changed, and two to one on Bigham was freely offered, with but few takers. The "hedging" game was not brisk enough to make some of them even.

When the horses were about ready for the fourth heat, the owner of Vallandigham withdrew him, as he had doubtless overdone himself, and left the contest between Bigham and Miner, which the former won in the next heat easily in 1:57.

The horse Honest Ance, owned by John Ladd, was pitted against time during the afternoon, and a few pools sold to his friends and those who thought he could not make his mile in 3 minutes. He came home in fine style in the announced time of 2:58, which is very good for a horse of his age and appearance if the time and track were correctly measured.

So ended the day's and week's sport, though a trotting match was announced, but as it was sundown when the running race was finished, most of the people went home, and if the trotting race came off we were not "there to see."

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Moore's Dancing Academy is now open.

Mr. C. M. Carter offers a splendid opportunity for persons to buy homes and pay for them in installments. Read his card.

Major H. M. Robert and S. G. L. Potter offer at private sale a number of valuable articles of household furniture. See advertisement.

A Home for the Dead.—The President has directed that a piece of land within the limits of the present military reservation at Fort McPherson, Nebraska, shall be set apart as a national cemetery.

Don't go home to-night without having previously made arrangements with John O'Neil & Co. to do up a fall suit in their own peculiar style, which is quite popular, as the elegant suits daily seen on the streets from this house will attest. Mr. Scharf, of the firm, has been to San Francisco. That is sufficient. Be sure to call and select from the latest arrivals, which are new and novel. The place is 96 First st.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Minnie Myrtle Miller is on her return to this city after a long absence in the East. She is on board the John L. Stephens.

Daniel Clark, Esq., President of the Patrons of Husbandry of Oregon, is among the passengers on the incoming steamer. He left the State a few weeks ago to attend the meeting of the State Grange which convened at San Jose, California.

The following tribute was paid J. H. Stinson, formerly of Portland, and now of Jacksonville, by the annual meeting of the Agassiz Institute, held at Central Hall, in the city of Sacramento, California, a short time since: "Rev. J. H. C. Borte, Corresponding Secretary, presented a resolution of encouragement to J. H. Stinson, of Jacksonville, Oregon, who has discovered a new science. It was passed unanimously." As the Agassiz Institute is incorporated and composed of scientific men alone, the resolution is highly complimentary to Mr. Stinson. This discovery will soon be made known to the world.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Cool and clear yesterday.

The races are over for the present.

Another stabbing affray last evening.

A boat race will be the next sensation.

Fourth street was crowded last evening.

Mount Hood smokes—at least many say it did yesterday and Saturday.

The delivery window at the Postoffice is crowded with inquiries on Sunday evenings.

Waiting for a settlement—the contractor who has the Stark street sewer contract, ere the street will be planked.

One of those peculiar appendages known as a rubber bustle was picked up on Third street yesterday. The owner can have it by calling on a clerk at—in fact, we have forgotten where he stops.

COOS BAY ITEMS.

Our regular correspondent writes from Empire City under date of Oct. 21st:

Immigrants are coming in from all directions.

It was the Bobolink (not the Sparrow, as reported in my last) that was wrecked on the Umpqua about two weeks ago.

The Custom House and Postoffice officials have moved into their new and more convenient quarters in H. H. Luse's new building.

The schooner Ivanhoe will probably make a trip to Portland with a cargo of coal, returning with supplies for this and other places on the bay.

The first load of grain carried over the Coos Bay Wagon Road from the Umpqua was shipped on the Eastport to San Francisco last week.

Mr. J. S. Birdsall, living on the Coquille, lost his little daughter on the 27th ult, she having been burned to death while her mother was absent from the house.

A grand ball, under the auspices of the Marshfield Hook and Ladder Company, is announced for Saturday evening, 25th inst. The proceeds will be applied to the fitting up of a hall and apparatus for the organization.

Captain Radcliff's new propeller sailed from the Coquille on the 18th instant with 50 M feet of lumber for the San Francisco market. As this is the only vessel in the Coquille and San Francisco trade, she will undoubtedly do well.

There was seven departures for the week ending to-day, which includes one barkentine, two brigs, four schooners and the steamer Eastport, and the arrivals were three schooners. All plying between this port and San Francisco.

The tug Fearless, caught on the bar a few days ago, is a total wreck. No lives lost. She was built in 1844 at Shanghai, China, and afterwards came to San Francisco, at which place she was purchased to be used as a tug for this harbor.

The opposition boat, to run on Coos Bay, is ready for the upper works, and will likely be launched by the 3d of next month. I presume Nat. Lane will take the helm and Capt. Troup will be engineer of the new craft. These gentlemen are well known, and do doubt will be popular with the citizens along the route.

ALONG THE ROAD.

A well known gentleman of this city, who is now on a visit to Olympia, sends the following:

The railroad, now from Kalama to Tenino, is in splendid order, and so is the stage road from Tenino to Olympia. Six-horse coaches come through well loaded and so does the opposition line.

General Sprague takes a trip over the road every now and then, to see that everything is in good working order. He came over to Olympia on last Friday, looking after the interests of the road, and Montgomery's boss also arrived at the same time, with a sack of coin to distribute among the workmen, which will make it lively for them.

The steamer North Pacific will be on the line to Victoria again in a few days. The steamer Amelia fills her place on this line, (while the North Pacific is being overhauled as to boiler, furnaces, etc.)

By December the officials expect to have the cars running to Tacoma, when the mail steamer North Pacific will ply between Victoria and Tacoma and other routes and changes made, etc.

Legislature grinding out some important bills, the length and text of which I have not space to add in this.

Unclaimed Gold.—Over $75,000 of the July interest has, after the expiration of ninety days, been returned to the United States Treasury by the assistant treasurers to whom it was sent for disbursement, but who could not find its owners. The money will now remain in the Treasury until called for.

BECK & WALDMAN, the popular clothiers, sell the best, charge a low price and always keep a large stock. Their stock of youth's clothing is not to be excelled anywhere. Parents should remember this.

At Olympia.

Mr. OLIVER DENNIE, the Photographic Artist, has leased the Gallery at Olympia for several weeks and will furnish the citizens at that place with Pictures of a superior style.

Many persons suffer with sick headache and nervous headache, usually induced by costiveness, indigestion, &c. Such persons will find relief if not cure, by keeping the bowels open with small doses of Parson's Purgative Pills.

VANCOUVER ITEMS.

At a special meeting of the City Council, held on Wednesday evening, Geo. H. Steward was elected City Recorder, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Hon. J. F. Smith.

Chaplain Van Horn, of Fort Vancouver, will give a lecture at the M. E. Church at this place, on this (Monday) evening, the proceeds to apply on a debt on the parsonage at that place. His subject will be "Battle Scenes on Lookout Mountain and Missionary Ridge."

A meeting called to remonstrate against any further partitioning of Clarke county was quite well attended, at the city hall, last Friday night. S. D. Maxson, Esq., occupied the chair, and S. P. McDonald acted as Secretary. M. Wintler submitted letters from the Clarke county delegation in the Legislature, from which it appeared that a strong effort is being made to take another slice from Clarke county, in spite of the remonstrances of the people. The delegation desired the will of the people to be expressed through petitions and remonstrances, and to that end a committee, consisting of the following gentlemen, was appointed. M. Wintler, L. M. Hidden, W. G. Hazard, S. R. Whipple and M. Shea.

THE OLD MAN'S DARLING

Margery Hilton's fortune was made

So she congratulated herself as she gazed exultingly upon the diamond solitaire which but an hour before Col Leslie had placed upon her finger His words of love still vibrated in her ears but, strange to say, there was no responsive melody in her heart although her lips had promised that she would become his wife. She was a young girl not yet out of her teens, poor, beautiful and ambitious Col Leslie was fifty, hale, gentlemanly and rich He had gone to the little manufacturing village of S—— upon business had accidently met with Margery and having been captured with her beauty addressed her after a short acquaintance. And so while he was being rapidly borne to his city home thinking of the loveliness of the young bride he had won, and his abundant means of making her happy, Margery sat in her little chamber dreaming bright dreams to be realized in the future. Her fortune was made What did it matter now if there had been poverty and privation in the past, was not the future bright with wealth and splendor?"

"I shall have diamonds and laces and society to my heart's content she mused gazing from her window into the cloudless [illegible], where the round rising moon looked softly into her glittering eyes 'I shall purchase them dearly, perhaps but I shall be an old man's darling' Col Leslie said so to-night as he placed the seal of our betrothal upon my finger It is true that there is a great disparity of years between us, but I am satisfied with the contract I have made I shall be [illegible] in purple and fine linen every day,' and if I am not happy, there is no one to blame but myself. I shall no longer be dependent upon those who grudge me even the [illegible] morsel I eat."

The wedding was a quiet one The village had never seen a lovelier bride nor a happier [illegible], and when, after a month's travel, the [illegible] took possession of their luxuriant [illegible], Margery again congratulated herself [illegible] the brilliancy of her fortune Her [illegible] dreams were meeting with fulfillment. She entered into her new life with all [illegible] of her [illegible] young spirit, glorying in [illegible] that had purchased her pleasures, [illegible] leaving nothing undone that could enhance her loveliness.

[illegible] accompanied her everywhere she [illegible] go.

"[illegible] too young, too inexperienced for me [illegible] her freedom," he said, earnestly "[illegible] will [illegible] tire of this frivolity after [illegible] and then we will settle down in that [illegible] have so often pictured to myself."

[illegible] on, and not even a shadow of [illegible] appeared to cloud the young [illegible] gayety was produced which [illegible] her participation, and no temptation [illegible]

[illegible] But waiting the frivolities [illegible] she had indulged so freely became so [illegible] to him that he could no [illegible] his impatience. But friends [illegible] that the lovely Mrs [illegible] not make a recluse of herself, [illegible] accompany her wherever she [illegible] to go. He transferred her, as it were, [illegible] and day after day and night [illegible] he was left alone as mercilessly as [illegible] been but a hired attendant of [illegible]

[illegible] had once been to his wife the [illegible] to state, and because she had married him for [illegible] determined to restrict her gayety. He would make overtures [illegible] judgment, and if they failed [illegible] the authority which centered [illegible] she had so seemingly [illegible]

[illegible] awaiting Margery's [illegible] upon the evening of the [illegible] entertainment of the season. [illegible] night she entered, radiant [illegible] He arose and offered [illegible] she [illegible] icily, still standing [illegible] immediately, and there [illegible] here."

[illegible] he answered, haughtily, [illegible] and gazing for a moment [illegible] beautiful face before him, "but [illegible] to say to you which must be [illegible]"

[illegible] her cloak more closely [illegible] and folding both hands [illegible] the chair by which she was [illegible]

[illegible] to say, please say it [illegible] I am tired and have [illegible] for to-morrow are.

[illegible] you will find, are more [illegible] with, and my expressed [illegible] You will remember that I stand first in this [illegible] my wishes are entitled to [illegible]"

"[illegible] explain," she said, "I do not know that I have [illegible] your remarks," [illegible] be more explicit, then," [illegible] still determined not to [illegible] by her indifference "We [illegible] three years, Margery [illegible] I have been but a slave [illegible] It is true that I am more [illegible] age, but I became your [illegible] believing that in your love [illegible] in its youthfulness, and [illegible] comfort and happiness in [illegible]'s darling' That I have [illegible] I freely acknowledge, that [illegible] I can but infer. I realize [illegible] the hope which led me to [illegible] since our tastes are [illegible]. What I have to say to you, [illegible] is this that I desire you to relinquish [illegible] these frivolities which [illegible] surely and so utterly."

[illegible] looked for a moment into his face

[illegible] I do not desire to renounce those [illegible] which you [illegible] to condemn so [illegible]

[illegible] to that authority which, [illegible] is vested in me.'

[illegible] I do not choose to submit to that [illegible]

[illegible] to be discussed be[illegible] he exclaimed, emphatically, now [illegible] and irate. "I am master [illegible] as you will find to your [illegible] you have never cared for me [illegible] the [illegible] of the wealth [illegible] your pleasures is too plain a [illegible] of argument. But there is one [illegible] you may rest assured; while [illegible] my name it must remain as unsullied [illegible] you received it. I do not wish you to [illegible] as a brute, nor yet as a tyrant, but [illegible] dissipation must cease I am [illegible] to be dragged from one scene of gayety [illegible] tied, as it were, to the wheels of [illegible] chariot, and since I cannot [illegible] you, you must confine yourself more [illegible] You can retire now, if you please, [illegible] that I expect your compliance [illegible]

[illegible] you for the privilege ' she returned [illegible]; "I shall not retire however, until [illegible] is definitely settled.' Her [illegible] like midnight stars and upon her [illegible] stood the beads of perspiration [illegible] like diamonds in the full blaze of the [illegible] which she stood "That I [illegible] love you, Col. Leslie, you seem to be [illegible] I married you because I was dazzled [illegible] visions of splendor which you [illegible] before my eyes, and I sighed for them [illegible] who travel in the sandy deserts thirst [illegible] water. Fashion and society are my idol [illegible] from them I would not turn [illegible] my hand to live another hour I shall not give them up without a struggle you may [illegible] tired, but the victory is not always to [illegible] strong. Good night' she added, turning [illegible] him and leaving the room with the air of [illegible]

Col. [illegible] stunned and mortified by her [illegible] buried his face in his hands This [illegible] the bitter ending of his pleasant dream [illegible] cold, calculating woman the wife who [illegible] over his home

"She shall have her own way," he suddenly [illegible] resolved "If she married me as she [illegible] for my wealth she shall not be cheated [illegible] again. She shall enjoy her freedom while I live, and my wishes shall hereafter re[illegible] untold."

Two—four years passed away and then the [illegible] of it all came Margery was sitting alone in her elegant drawing room, whence a hun[illegible] guests had just departed, when Colonel [illegible] entered hastily and drew a chair to her [illegible] She gathered her trailing robes of amber [illegible] around her, as if fearing [illegible] He noticed the movement, [illegible] spoke [illegible]:

"[illegible] years ago, Margery, that I never [illegible] by word or look, I [illegible] from [illegible] and [illegible] now have I kept that promise This, however is a perilous moment for both of us, and must account for this intrusion I have a communication to make which will startle you but you must hear it Are you listening? I am a bankrupt Margery a bankrupt'

A bankrupt! she exclaimed hoarsely "Are you in earnest?"

'Yes, in terrible terrible earnest as to-morrow's proceedings will show I have not a dollar in the world which I can honestly call my own Not for your sake I regret it You worship wealth and position you told me once and I have never forgotten it God knows I pity you

What are we to do she asked brokenly for tears she fought the tears would not be repressed

I do not know he answered vaguely The things reached me but a few hours ago and since then I have thought of nothing, but how I should tell you without breaking your heart I am too old to work for you Margery, but how will you endure our misfortunes? You will not in the less reproach me for not having provided against this contingency when we were married but I did not know then that you sold yourself to me. I thought that you loved me a little notwithstanding the disparity of years between us

He ceased speaking and abruptly left the room For a moment Margery's heart softened toward him but the next she rose up and sweeping her eyes over the magnificent apartment said bitterly

No no I cannot live without them

She ascended to her chamber where her maid was awaiting her coming She wearily submitted herself to her skillful hands and having substituted a morning wrapper for the party robes she dismissed her sleepy attendant and sank into an easy chair which stood before the fire. She folded her white jeweled hands in her lap and thought over the events of the past few years

'What a vain profitless life I have lived!' she murmured regretfully Who has been benefited by it? Not even myself And with the abundant means I have watched how much good I might have done' Have I indeed been happier than I was when I sat in my little chamber, the only ornaments I possessed a white rose for my hair and my old mother's old-fashioned wedding-ring for my finger? And with her mother's memory came back a tenderness a softness to the heart of Margaret Leslie which had not visited it for years. 'It is not too late to retrieve myself, and I will ' she added resolutely I cannot recall the past but I can at least prove to my husband that I am not dead to all sense of honor and shame'

Margery descended to the breakfast room a different person The elements of true womanhood had so long slumbered in her breast that only the rudest shock could have aroused them With the awakening came the conviction of her unworthiness and a determination to regain the esteem she had lost Col Leslie was not present at the table, and to the servant who summoned him, he said

"Excuse me to your mistress and bring me a cup of coffee I wish nothing else

"I will carry it to him myself," said Margery when she received the message, and a few moments after she entered the library where he was sitting

"Can I assist you?" she said, softly as she deposited the unique silver breakfast service at his side

He had not noticed her presence before He glanced hastily in her face and the tears stood in his eyes

"I do not know whether you can or not he replied, almost wildly My brain is in a whirl These papers" pointing to the heaps upon his either hand, 'represent all I possessed, I have been here all night, Margery, and my conviction, after a thorough investigation, is that we are almost beggars"'

"'You must rest now, at any rate " she said gently. "and when you have drank your coffee, we will talk our misfortunes over

Whilst he partook of his breakfast, she busied herself in arranging the disordered apartment She turned off the gas, which still burned brilliantly, and throwing aside the heavy curtains, admitted the sunlight into the room Not until then did she observe the change that had taken place in her husband's appearance He was worn and haggard, and his whole frame trembled as with an ague Margery sat down near him, and leaning her arms upon the table, looked into his face

"You are too easily discouraged Col Leslie," she exclaimed with emotion

"I comprehend our situation much more clearly than you do," he replied gloomily

"Of the business details, I am, of course, ignorant," she answered "but they do not alter nor affect the fact which so intimately concerns us."

"You realize it all then, and yet your heart is not broken?" he gasped rather than asked

"You refer to the conversation that passed between us years ago?" she inquired, the red flush mantling her cheek, and the tears gathering in her eyes.

"Yes ' You told me that you would not care to live, if bereft of society and wealth That remembrance has been the bitterest drop in this bitter, bitter cup "

'Forget it!" she exclaimed, passionately, Forget that I was ever so unwomanly, so ungrateful Our married life has so far proved a failure, but there is time enough to redeem it "

Col. Leslie could scarcely believe that he heard aright "You are not jesting with me, Margery?"

"Indeed, indeed I am not she exclaimed, earnestly Although I have proved recreant to the trust you once reposed in me I am worthier to-day to be your wife that I was upon our bridal morning If you will only esteem me again as you did, you shall never have cause to regret it

Colonel Leslie gathered her to his heart, and pressed his lips to her forehead

'There is light ahead for us Margery," he said, as soon as he could trust himself to speak

It is not all as dark as it was a while ago I have education, talent, too, my friends used to say, and old as I am, they must be brought into requisition In my early manhood I read and practiced law, and a few months study will fit me for the profession again

There were but a few thousand left of all of Col Leslie's vast estate But when Margery left the spacious residence which had been the scene of so many social triumphs she felt but one sincere regret, and that was that so many opportunities for doing good had been wasted Though the home she entered was humble in comparison, she realized that domestic contentment which otherwise she never would have known .

With the vigor and energy which had always been prominent traits in Col Leslie's character he entered into his profession and became distinguished as a lawyer Once in the right path, Margery never faltered, and being constantly in the society of her husband, she learned to love him devotedly Although to-day his hair is white with age, his form is still stately, and his step still firm, whilst by his side whether in his library poring over his ponderous books or in his parlor entertaining his friends, is the elegant form and beautiful face of Margery "the old man's darling

Some of the best financiers agree that the volume of currency is so reduced that no surplus exists over actual requirements that if there was there would be no such scarcity as is felt at present that the general run of prices has been reduced to a gold standard measured by those prevailing in other countries and that therefore the business affairs of the nation are in a condition to accommodate themselves to the change The gap between Gold and Greenbacks is so narrow that if the panacea for financial ills is to be found in resumption of specie payment it does indeed seem that the present emergency constitutes the opportunity for such resumption
